Orangeburg Squealings.

THE WEATHER-Is something we don't like to think about, speak about, or write about. We have roasted, stewed, swoltered, sizzled and suffered until we are completely used up and haven't a word to say against it. There is not a live thought or a quick nerve within us. Our physical nature is exhausted and our moral sensibilities are withered. Heat has no more terrors for our body and crime is no longer repugnant to our soul. The thought of cool weather atimulates us not animally, and the contemplation of virtue moves us pleasantly, no longer. We are simply indifferent-used upplayed out : we are dead before our time. We think we ought to be buried, but must have been overlooked by the undertaker. Let him come-we shall not resist him-if able to, we shall help him. Perhaps, after all, a cool grave would be refreshing.

MAYOR BULL! MAYOR BULL!!thing to relieve us of the hog nuisance? You are a king among good fellows, you are the Lord Mayor of Orangeburg, and head of the Town Council, and conrequently your power must be almost absolute; consequently you can do anything you please, except to settle the theremometer. But we don't ask you to settle the thermometer consequently you can do what we do ask, and that is, relieve us of this hog nuisance. Listen to our prayer, good Mayor Ball, and some day you shall be blessed.

Town Council! Town Council!! -Where are you, what are you doing and what do you intend to do? This The nuisance is getting to be just a little just bearing, and if you don't do some thing in the premises before long, some July else will; and then you vill have we move park instead of hogs, that's all. don the owners think of this if the a moreil won't consider it.

DR. OLIVEROS! DR. OLIVEROS!!-You are Clerk and a head man in the Town Council. We beseeth you to sir Them up about this misance-stir them with a sharp stick, and let them have no peace until the last log has grunted his filthy farewell. How long will the Counwil permit in their streets and at their very dene-give strychnine ali round, and treat the Council to soda water without regard to accidents. We are glad to hear from every quar ter of our County that the crops are in a more flourishing condition than has been the case for several years. The provision crop is also much larger than any probably, since the war. Cotton has not been neglected, but corn has been cared for, and that is what our people needed more than anything else. At last the it is worse than folly to buy provisions which have been paying freights and profits all the way from Illinois and Indiana, when they can be made in profu- us in the early portion of the week and sion at their own doors at a saving of at which is published on our first page. least fifty per cent. Let the farmer Next week we hope to continue it, and ly and stock before he thinks of anything else, for only then can he maintain that independence without which the tiller of the soil is a miserable drudge rather than a free man. A support secured, he may then plant in good conscience and with sanguine hopes, those crops which have such a charm for the speculative nature of man. We are also glad to note the continued active demand and steady high price for our great staple. If the barvested crop but realizes the prices ruling at present Orangeburg will be a happy County this fall and winter; money will be plenty with every one, and the world will mag jollily on into the beginning of a new year which we shall be well satisfied with, if no worse than the present

Our Town is certainly growing rapidly. Hardly a week passes without some new evidence of its increasing prosperity and we are disposed to think we have fair grounds for our belief that before the lapse of many years Orangeburg will be second in importance to no town within the State smaller than Columbia. Indeed, the growth of the Yown exceeds its ability to supply house room to the new-comers. It is at present almost impossible to find a frouse to rent in the town, and rents are as high as might be expected from such a condition of things. This offers an inducement for the investment of capital which can not long remain unimproved. In fact, we were recently informed that Judge Andrews will soon erect several comfortable and pleasant cottages on the ground now occupied by Whittemore's soop factory. This, we are confident, will be but the beginning of a series of improvements in real property which will render Orangeburg one of the most desirable towns in the State. And whatever Orangeburg does, does with a vim, a life, and an energy, worthy of all praise. It has the most enterprising, active, and intelligent Fire Department we ever saw in an inland town. It has large and well stocked stores, conducted by men who understand Why don't you-why won't you do some- their business thoroughly. Its new Bank is in a flourishing condition. Its new hotel is conducted by one of the best of hosts and the very best of hostosses. It is able to, and does, give concerts seldom excelled any where. Its climate is healthy, its society is refined and agreeable, it is within easy reach reach of both the political and commercial capitals of the State, and, altogether, we know of no other town in South Carolina which offers to the business man, to the invalid, or to those in search of a pleasant, healthy, and quiet home, a better chance of finding what they seek than our fair Town of Or-
